After thirty-five years working in Cartegena, Colombia as “the slave of the slaves,” Fr Peter Claver SJ died on September 7, 1654. He was beatified by Pope Pius IX in 1860, and his cause for canonization moved forward.

Advance to 1862, to the Shrine of St Joseph in St Louis, Missouri.

A parishioner, Ignatius Stecker, suffered grievously from an injury to his breastbone. He ignored it for a couple of months, until a tumor-like inflammation began to grow alarmingly.

The family doctor was consulted. Remedies were tried and failed. The breastbone and some ribs were discovered to be in a state of decomposition. More attempts, more failures; the patient only grew worse. This went on for nine months, and the patient was given two weeks to live. He lingered on, resigned and preparing for death.

At this critical moment, a famous missionary arrived at St. Joseph’s to preach a mission. Mrs. Strecker was present when the orator preached on the life and virtues of Peter Claver, and blessed the people with his relic. She went home and begged her husband to ask Peter Claver to cure him. The next day, with the last ounce of his strength, Mr. Strecker literally dragged himself to St. Joseph’s Church and came in just in time for the blessing. With sincere faith and strong confidence he placed himself in the line of the sick. He was blessed, and kissed the relic.

Ignatius “felt a sudden increase in courage, a strengthening of faith, and an utter assurance that he would recover his health through the intercession of Peter Claver.” The relic had no sooner been applied than the external suppurating sore began to disappear. The breastbone and ribs healed rapidly and the tuberculosis of the lungs vanished – all within a week or two. In fact, the day after the blessing with the relic, Mr. Strecker was back on the job in the factory. Despite great fatigue, he could already do a reasonable day’s work.

Two years after the cure, a thorough canonical investigation was made. The miracle was formally declared authentic in 1887. This miracle was chosen as one of those required for the canonization process. St Peter Claver was canonized the following year.

Be Indulgent!

There is a word which can not be said too often to every Christian whom God has destined to live, converse, and labor in the society of his fellow-creatures: Be indulgent. Yes, be indulgent; it is necessary for others, and it is necessary for your own sake. Forget the little troubles that others may cause you; keep up no resentment for the inconsiderate or unfavorable words that may have been said about you; excuse the mistakes and awkward blunders of which you are the victim; always make out good intentions for those who have done you any wrong by imprudent acts or speeches; in a word, smile at everything, show a pleasant face on all occasions, maintain an inexhaustible fund of goodness, patience, and gentleness.

Thus you will be at peace with all your brethren; your love for them will suffer no alteration, and their love for you will increase day by day. But, above all, you will practice in an excellent manner Christian charity, which is impossible without this toleration and indulgence at every instant.

Fr Lasance
