It's a Mistake . . . .

Not to alleviate if we can, all that needs alleviation.
Not to make allowance for the weaknesses of others.
To set up our own standards, and expect everybody to conform to them.
To try to measure the enjoyment of others by our own.
To expect uniformity of opinion in this world.
To look for judgment and experience in youth.
To endeavor to mould all dispositions alike.
Not to yield to unimportant trifles.
To look for perfections in our own actions.
To worry ourselves and others about what cannot be remedied.
To consider everything impossible that we cannot ourselves perform.
To believe only what our finite minds can grasp.
To live as if the moment, the time, the day, were so important that it would live forever.
To estimate people by some outside quality, for it is that within which makes the man.

Pictures in a Home

A room with good Catholic pictures and a room without such pictures differ as much as a room with windows and one without these niceties. Pictures, and I mean only good, pure pictures, are consolers of loneliness, and a relief to the troubled mind. They are windows to the imprisoned heart, books, histories, sermons which we can read without the trouble of turning over the leaves or straining the eyes. They make up for the want of many other enjoyments to those whose life is mostly passed amid the distractions of daily life. Pictures of Our Lord and His saints inspire us, give us courage, and induce us to bear our cross with Christian resignation.

God's Word, compared by Him to a tiny seed and to a little leaven, is divine. It calms our passions and brings forth in our hearts marvels of faith, hope, and charity.

The Church is divine. She is excellently typified by the yeast and seed of today's parables. We must constantly meditate on our Lord's doctrine, that like leaven it may pervade and transform our hearts, and like the mustard seed may grow to a great tree and bring forth fruits of holiness. Thus shall we work for the spreading abroad of God's kingdom.

"For from the rising of the sun even to the going down, my name is great among the Gentiles, and in every place there is sacrifice, and there is offered to my name a clean oblation: for my name is great among the Gentiles, saith the Lord of hosts." Malachi 1:11

ANNOUNCEMENTS

- Banns of Marriage are announced for the second time between Clare Perpetua Grossman and Christopher James Knight, both of Sacred Heart Parish. Anyone aware of impediments to the marriage should speak with Father immediately.
- Closing hymn for November: Out of the Depths, p 105, #62.

"We may," says the holy and amiable St Francis de Sales, "draw from the thought of Purgatory more consolation than apprehension. The greater part of those who dread Purgatory so much, think more of their own interests than of God's glory; this proceeds from the fact that they think only of the sufferings without considering the peace and happiness which are there enjoyed by the holy souls. It is true that the torments are so great that the most acute sufferings of this life bear no comparison to them, but the interior satisfaction which is there enjoyed is such that no prosperity nor contentment upon earth can equal it."

The souls are in a continual union with God. They are perfectly resigned to His will, or rather their will is so transformed into that of God that they cannot will but what God wills. They purify themselves willingly and lovingly, because such is the Divine good pleasure. They wish to be there in the state wherein God pleases, and as long as it shall please Him. They cannot sin, nor can they experience the least movement of impatience, nor commit the slightest imperfection. They love God more than they love themselves, and more than all things else; they love Him with a perfect, pure, and disinterested love. They are consoled by angels. They are assured of their eternal salvation, and filled with a hope that can never be disappointed in its expectations.

Their bitterest anguish is soothed by a certain profound peace. It is a species of Hell as regards the suffering; it is a Paradise as regards the delight infused into their hearts by charity: Charity, stronger than death and more powerful than hell; Charity, whose lamps are all fire and flame. "Happy state!" continues the holy Bishop, "more desirable than appalling, since its flames are flames of love and charity."
